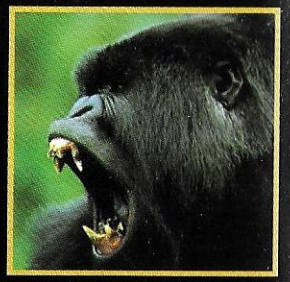
THE MOST DANGEROUS GAME



What is it like to be charged by a 450 pound mountain gorilla? What do you do when nine tons of raging African elephant tries to tear you apart.

Who would pose as bait for a deadly spitting cobra, fly a hot air balloon at 16,000 feet over Africa's Mount Kilimanjaro without a parachute, or pilot a light aircraft single-handed over the frozen Himalayan peaks at 26,000 feet?

Few occupations in the world offer the variety of dangers or elements of risk faced by the people who film wild animals. This exhilarating one hour special shows SURVIVAL camera teams from all over the world risking life and limb, performing fool-hardy acts of bravery and daring to capture some of the most rivetting scenes ever seen television.

This is the most dangerous game, but according to the players, if it teaches us to understand and learn how to protect the natural world, it's worth it.

Filmed by Survival Camera Teams.
Produced by Colin Willock.
